

Death beckoned her with outstretched hand and whispered softly of an unknown land ... But she was not afraid to go – for though the path she did not know. She took death's hand without fear – for He who safely brought her here ... Had told her He would lead the way – into eternity's bright day. And so she did not go alone – into the valley that's unknown ... She gently took death by the hand – and journeyed to the promised land. And there, with step so light and gay – she polishes the sun by day ... And lights the stars, that shine at night – and keeps the moonbeams silvery bright. For Mothers really never die – they just keep house up in the sky ...
And in the heavenly home above – they wait to welcome those they love.
